Marcello Musto is Professor of Sociology at York University, Toronto, and has published worldwide in more than twenty languages. He is the author of Another Marx: Early Manuscripts to the International, and The Last Years of Karl Marx: An Intellectual Biography. Among his most recent edited books there are Marx's Capital after 150 Years: Critique and Alternative to Capitalism, The Marx Revival: Key Concepts and New Interpretations, and Karl Marx’s Writings on Alienation.

The Franke Lectures are made possible by the generosity of Richard and Barbara Franke, and are intended to present important topics in the Humanities to a wide and general audience.
